Reliance Communications launches Money Transfer on Mobiles

- ❖ RCOM's increasing user base and network area offers significant scope for M - Commerce

Mumbai, September 06, 2007: In a path breaking initiative, Reliance Communications, rated among Asia's Top 5 Most Valuable Telecom Companies, has launched "Money Transfer" through mobile phones across the country through its tie-up with ICICI Bank. This initiative offers Reliance Communications subscribers a modern and easy-to-use alternative means of account to account transfer generally associated with, banks and other agencies, in the most talked about 'Money Transfer' space. Money Remittance market opportunity is estimated to be in the range of $24Billion annually including global remittances to India.

Through this arrangement, ICICI Bank's existing and potential customers can transfer money to their family and friends having an ICICI bank Account anytime, anywhere in the country using their Reliance Mobile Phones. With the objective of making Money Transfer available to the masses, this service is available on Reliance Mobile World enabled phones including the recently launched and hugely popular Reliance Classic range of phones starting from Rs 777(Black & White) to Rs 1234 (Colour Phones).In addition to reach, low cost, ease of use and faster delivery, the service has the potential to transform the lives of 97% of the Indian population living in the Reliance network area of 25000 towns and 6 lakh villages, to be fully connected by March 2008.

On the occasion of the launch of this service Mr. Anil Pande, Head Product Development , Reliance Communications said, "India is the fastest growing market in the world with a large mobile customer base and is also the world's highest receiver of remittances. In this context we believe M-commerce will be the next big thing. Our association with ICICI Bank brings a paradigm shift in the way domestic Money Transfer business is conducted in India, which is predominantly being done through the banks and other agencies."

Mr. Maninder Juneja, Head- Retail Liabilities, ICICI Bank said, "As the market leader in the retail banking space, ICICI Bank has been at the forefront in offering distinctive value to its customers. Money Transfer enabled through mobile communication is fast emerging as a convenient and effective finance tool for customers across the country. We are delighted to be associated with Reliance Communication and with this tie-up, customers will now have an exciting and innovative product offering. The Bank has entered into successful partnerships and alliances across segments and remains committed to provide such value-added services to customers."

How Money Transfer on Reliance Mobile works

ICICI Bank's Reliance mobile customers can go to the 'Finance' section > R World> Mobile Bank>M Banking>ICICI Bank>Saving Account. The customers would be charged a mobile transaction fee of Rs.10 and can do transaction up to Rs. 5000 with multiple transactions in a day. However the service will be free for an introductory period of 90 days.

Reliance's ever-increasing mobile subscriber base powered by the state-of-the-art wireless network provides immense opportunities to offer a slew of innovative M-commerce services that enhance its leadership in this arena. Reliance's earlier M-Commerce services include Mobile banking, Bill Payments, Railway and airline booking, Lottery ticketing, Shopping, Auctions, Movie and Event ticketing etc.

Another recently launched service - the "Recharge Now" application enables the subscriber to top up his/her account upon successful payment through his/her credit card from the subscriber's mobile. The minimum denomination allowed is Rs.100 and the maximum is Rs.500. The subscriber is entitled to a maximum of 2 transactions in a month. For accessing this service go to Reliance Mobile World>Finance>E-Recharge.
